RESPECT OTHERS 5

29 Oct 2020 | Uncategorized

1. A teacher in France had his throat slit by an 18-year-old Chechen boy. The killer was angered by the teacher showing a caricature of Prophet Muhammad. The teacher intended to demonstrate freedom of expression.
2. The killing is not an act that as a Muslim I would approve. But while I believe in the freedom of expression, I do not think it includes insulting other people. You cannot go up to a man and curse him simply because you believe in freedom of speech.
3. In Malaysia, where there are people of many different races and religions, we have avoided serious conflicts between races because we are conscious of the need to be sensitive to the sensitivities of others. If we are not, then this country would never be peaceful and stable.
4. We often copy the ways of the West. We dress like them, we adopt their political systems, even some of their strange practices. But we have our own values, different as between races and religions, which we need to sustain.
5. The trouble with new ideas is that the late comers tend to add new interpretations. These are not what the originators intended. Thus, freedom for women, meant the right to vote in elections. Today, we want to eliminate everything that is different between men and women.
6. Physically we are different. This limits our capacity to be equal. We have to accept these differences and the limitations that are placed on us. Our value systems is also a part of human rights.
7. Yes, sometimes some values seem to be inhuman. They cause some people to suffer. We need to reduce the sufferings. But not by force, if the resistance is great.
8. The dress code of European women at one time was severely restrictive. Apart from the face no part of the body was exposed. But over the years, more and more parts of the body are exposed. Today a little string covers the most secret place, that's all. In fact, many in the west are totally naked when on certain beaches.
9. The West accepts this as normal. But the West should not try to forcibly impose this on others. To do so is to deprive the freedom of these people.
10. Generally, the west no longer adhere to their own religion. They are Christians in name only. That is their right. But they must not show disrespect for the values of others, for the religion of others. It is a measure of the level of their civilisation to show this respect.
11. Macron is not showing that he is civilised. He is very primitive in blaming the religion of Islam and Muslims for the killing of the insulting school teacher. It is not in keeping with the teachings of Islam. But irrespective of the religion professed, angry people kill. The French in the course of their history has killed millions of people. Many were Muslims.
12. Muslims have a right to be angry and to kill millions of French people for the massacres of the past. But by and large the Muslims have not applied the "eye for an eye" law. Muslims don't. The French shouldn't. Instead the French should teach their people to respect other people's feelings.
13. Since you have blamed all Muslims and the Muslims' religion for what was done by one angry person, the Muslims have a right to punish the French. The Retaliation and punishment.

I understand what Tun meant, by the "right to punish" the French for wrongs committed against the Muslims. It is common feeling of frustration shared by oppressed communities. And I believe that it is the role and failure of the state in enforcing the laws, and in enacting anti-hate laws where none exist. In my view, the killing was an evident failure of the French government (perhaps pandering to freedom of speech proponents?) to enact anti-hate laws that would have prevented ordinary people from taking the laws into their own hands, so to speak.

This episode is another lesson for politicians to work their a** off and look after the welfare of their society, rather than sitting on their hands. France is not the only multiracial country in the world. Time has changed.. it is not 1939 anymore, not an empire world anymore. Macron should take note.

This French tragedy is a lesson not only for France, but for the whole world.

On Western countries.

I have lived in England half of my life, and let me say a few things that I had experienced and observed.

Almost ALL (with a few exceptions) the older (over 75) generation of White English people are respectful of people from other cultures and religions, including Islam. They use to be a lot of literature and knowledge gathered about non-Western cultures by older generation of English people. Even though they are a bit snobbish when they lived here, but they have absolute respect and awe for things in the East. I can guarantee that the older generation Westerners equally despise their own younger generation. Of course there is the minority of far right supporters of Hitler and other fascist leaders, just like there are extremist fanatical Muslims in Malaysia and Indonesia who think that all non-Muslims/non-believers belong in Hell. That's normal.

The younger (my) generation who grew up in the West are ALL equally mad, whether they are Whites, Blacks, Christians, Muslims. I once was lambasted by a Muslim British Pakistani young lady at university for questioning the "universality" of the UN Universal Human Rights. Universal according to who, I asked. So, the current madness on freedom of speech is not only promoted by non-Muslims, but equally by young Muslims themselves in Britain. That is what I call madness.

In my view, the entire world has degenerated in decent social values whether in the West, and in the East as a result of globalization and spread of modern views on sex and family. Same sex parenting is not a Western idea but a modern idea that is increasingly accepted by all people of such communities whether in the West or East.

Religions in my view will play an ever increasing role in preventing further degeneration of decent social values, values that had kept us defined as proper human beings in the past. The world is increasingly worsening in terms of its basic values, in the West and the East.

It is something that the UN needs to put on its agenda, even in the face of opposition by the modern generation. By the way, there are a lot in the modern generation who long for decent social values of the past, but they are the silent ones. It is going to be a battle to save the world from uncontrolled modernization.

A tough but worthy battle.

I PREFER TO VIEW THESE CASES AS SOME KINDS OF CULT, OR RITUAL WOSHIPS, THAT COULD LEAD TO ISLAMPHOBIA.

THIS IS MURDER CASE, SIMPLE AND STRAIGHT FORWARD.

CELAKA BETUL, YOU SURE OR NOT, TWINPEAKS?
